Handy and Useful for Basic Navigation and Getting Around

By Pop Bop

Because this map covers a huge area its scale is necessarily large. It will give you an overall view of the Peninsula and enough detail to select your routes. Want to take the spur highway to Kenai? This map will make it perfectly clear where the spur intersects with 1 and what to look for before the turn. But don't confuse this with topo trail maps; not enough detail to launch yourself into the unknown.

That said, when you spread this out you get the entire Peninsula. How does Hope fit into your plan to drive from Whittier to Seward? Can you get off 1 and drive along Kalifornsky Beach Road? Just how massive is this Park I'm driving through?

I like Google for really magnified and close-in views. But no web site or app can give you the big picture in any sort of detail. This old school map - its waterproof, it folds, it fits in your glove compartment, you can spread it out on your kitchen table - gives you the big picture when you need it.

The detailed maps of Homer, Seward and Kenai/Soldotna are very helpful and will help you when you get to those places. These three detailed maps do have a lot of info, (markets, gas, shops), that its nice to have at your fingertips.

All of the other stuff - lists of parks and campgrounds and canoeing sites and fishing sites and so on - probably won't be really helpful once you start your trip. They do seem helpful, though, for trip planning because they offer lots of suggestions for further internet research. (48 hikes are described; that will keep your web browser busy.)

So, this is good value, has lots of factoids, gives you the big picture even if the print is tiny, and puts the Peninsula in perspective. That's fine; anyway, they had me at WATERPROOF.

We just returned from a ten-day trip to Seward and Homer. This map gave us a good overview of the areas we drove through, and lots of info on recreation, wildlife viewing, trails, and more. Best overview map we found of the area.
